Professional Organizations

Being members of many professional healthcare associations, USMEDX has developed an extensive network of resources that exposes our company to the latest innovations in healthcare technology and administration. As an organization, we strive to take advantage of every educational opportunity available to us so that we may remain current with any changes to healthcare law, medical billing practices, and technological developments. In turn, we then can use this information coupled with our skill to help our clients develop their practices based upon their vision.
